The Company

Reliance Home Comfort is one of Canada's largest providers of home heating and cooling. Their goal is to help their customers find comfort in their homes, workplaces, and communities through their wide variety of products and services. Today, Reliance is trusted by more than 1.8 million homeowners, businesses, and builders across the country.

THE PROBLEM

High Demand and Call Center Overwhelm

Reliance has provided its customers with affordable, quality home services and products for over 50 years. However, they were experiencing many challenges that come with having such a large customer base.

Their contact center was receiving approximately 160,000 calls per month, many involving complex cases. Reliance had 600 agents supporting multiple service channels, including sales, service, billing, and more. Providing full service to their callers became a significant challenge, resulting in long hold times, frustrated customers, and dropped calls. This was negatively impacting their KPIs and customer experience.

THE SOLUTION

Voice Call-Backs to the Rescue

To address these issues, Reliance Home Comfort sought help from Fonolo's Voice Call-Back solution. With their new call-back technology, Reliance customers who entered the call queue were offered a call-back with a simple push of a button. From there, Fonolo would hold the customer's place in line and call them back once the next available agent was available.

Fonolo's cloud-based software integrated seamlessly with their existing Avaya call center infrastructure. Between the ease of implementation, low cost, and seamless interaction with Reliance customers, Fonolo was an easy choice to make.

"We value people's time, which is why we feel a call-back service is a must-have."
